

<https://filmsnobbery.com/wp-content/uploads/2019/02/OFF19-Interview-With-Nicholas-Laviola.mp3>

FilmSnobbery's Nic LaRue and Director Nicholas Laviola chat about snake-handling preachers, Nicholas's new film HOLY GHOST FIRE THE ECSTASY OF RANDY WOLFORD, and the almost supernatural draw that he had to make this movie. Nicholas also extols the virtues of being at the Oxford Film Festival in Oxford, MS because of his fondness for author William Faulkner.

HOLD GHOST FIRE THE ECSTASY OF RANDY WOLFORD Synopsis – Serpent-handling preacher Randy Wolford's last service on May 27, 2012 in West Virginia in which he was bitten by his Timber Rattlesnake and died.

(50)